Sea Pony Press: Art Sales Rack

A program of the Sitka Conservation Society's Living Wilderness Fund

About Us

The Sitka Conservation Society

Founded in 1967, the Sitka Conservation Society is the oldest conservation organization in Alaska. Our mission is to protect the natural environment of the Tongass National Forest while supporting the development of economically, socially, and environmentally sustainable communities within Southeast Alaska. Established in 2025, Sea Pony Press is a new program of SCS's Living Wilderness Fund, combining nature, community, and creative expression.

Sea Pony Press

Sea Pony Press is a community of makers who honor the Tongass National Forest and our unique ways of life through acts of creative expression.

Sea Pony Press advances the legacy of Eric and Pam Bealer, renowned artists and colorful community members who left their unique homestead and a set of historic printing presses at the edge of wilderness in Lisianski Inlet to the Sitka Conservation Society — to use to protect the lands and waters they loved.

After seven years of silence, those presses are rolling again, carrying a legacy of joy and creative expression in the heart of the Tongass National Forest, through workshops, residencies, and community collaborations.

A Trust-Based Art Sales Rack

The Sea Pony Press Art Sales Rack runs on trust and simplicity. Artwork goes up, buyers pay on the honor system via QR code, and artists get paid quarterly. Every piece that goes home with a buyer becomes a small, lasting connection between that person and the place, people, and values that made it.

Every sale is split transparently: 80% goes directly to you, the artist; 20% is retained by Sea Pony Press to support our program, which includes printmaker residencies, community art collaborations, and offsetting the supplies and maintenance costs to keep Eric Bealer's historic presses rolling.

Because this is a trust-based system in a public venue, the Sitka Conservation Society cannot be held responsible for artwork that is damaged, lost, or stolen from the rack. If something is particularly precious or irreplaceable, it may be better suited for a different context.

Participation Requirements

SCS Membership

Participating artists must be active members of the Sitka Conservation Society. Your membership fuels on-the-ground stewardship, strengthens sustainable communities, and helps us care for the Tongass.

Membership is $30/year. To join or check your status, visit sitkawild.org or email info@sitkawild.org. Members receive an annual calendar, member discounts on merchandise, advocacy updates and more.

Sea Pony Press artists also receive a letter pressed manifesto printed on Eric Bealer's historic Vandercook.

Paperwork and Tax Documentation

Participating Artists are required to file a W9 for tax reporting purposes. For automated electronic transfer (preferred payment), an ACH authorization form is required. Both will be sent via secure link. Artists receiving more than $600 a year will be sent a 1099 for tax filing. Questions? Contact Kylee at info@sitkawild.org.

Preparing & Displaying Your Artwork

Preparing work for display is the responsibility of the artist. Each piece should have a backing board to keep it flat and rigid, a protective sleeve, and an artist insert card. Due to the nature of the rack system we can only accommodate flat unframed artwork. The Sitka Conservation Society may have backing boards and plastic sleeves available to help, but this isn't guaranteed. Contact Bethany or Kylee at info@sitkawild.org

The Artist Insert Card

The artist insert card (example pictured below) is available for download here and can be filled out digitally or manually. It can be printed by the artist or blanks are available at the Sitka Conservation Society office (call to make sure we are open 907-747-7509 or email info@sitkawild.org). You are welcome to add your business card, artist statement, social handles, website, or any other materials alongside the insert, but please make sure the insert card is clearly visible as it provides directions for purchase.

Selecting and Pricing Artwork

The Art Sales Rack is hosted in a shared community space under the Sea Pony Press and Sitka Conservation Society name. We want to celebrate the full range of creative expression but please use good judgment and avoid overtly pornographic, obscene, hateful, or violent art. If in doubt, reach out to us.

Payments are processed through Paypal which helps keep data secure but includes a 3% fee, please price up your artwork an additional 3% to cover this cost.

Dropping Off and Retrieving Work

Local artists can bring work directly to Harbor Mountain Brewing and put it on the rack anytime. You can retrieve or swap out work whenever you like. Alternatively, artists (especially remote artists) can arrange an alternative collaboration with the Sitka Conservation Society directly. Reach out to Kylee or Bethany, info@sitkawild.org to discuss. There are currently no limits on the number of pieces per artist, though we may introduce guidelines as the rack grows.

Getting Paid

All payments go to SCS via PayPal. Each transaction is automatically labeled with your name and amounts. At the end of each quarter, Kylee at SCS will review transactions and issue payouts.

- Quarterly payouts — January, April, July, October
- 80% of each sale goes to you
- Payments issued by SCS via check or electronic transfer (preferred)

Questions about a payment? Contact Kylee at info@sitkawild.org.

Staying Connected

When you join the rack, we will add you to a WhatsApp group with other participating artists, the Sea Pony Press team, and Harbor Mountain Brewing. It is a casual space for us all to stay in touch.

We will use it to share:

- Periodic sale updates
- Upcoming shows and events — First Fridays, artist table nights, collaborative exhibitions at the brewery
- New sales opportunities as the rack grows and may travel to new venues
- Sea Pony Press updates — residencies, workshops, collaborative projects, art shows, and new projects
- Sitka Conservation Society news and advocacy opportunities

Please consider tagging @sitkawild when running outreach on your work for sale on the rack!

Questions & Contact

We are glad you are here. Sea Pony Press works because of artists like you, and we want this to be as easy and rewarding as possible. We are trying something new here, and imagine there may be kinks and redirections on our journey, so please share your feedback and insight with us!
